Music Is Demonstrated To Be a Valuable
Therapeutic Agent.

"ANNIE LAURIE" SOOTHES NERVES

While "Tannhauser" Causes the Pulse Beats To Increase
Rapidly—Dr. Kennedy of Brooklyn, Makes Demonstration.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)

New York, Nov. 23.—The value of music as a therapeutic agent was scientifically demonstrated at the home of Dr. Francis S. Kennedy of Brooklyn. Variations of from fifteen to twenty-five beats per minute in the pulse of subjects under contrasting influences, such as selections from the Tannhauser overture and Leybach's fifth nocturne, furnished abundant proof that under certain conditions melodies and harmonies furnish a satisfactory substitute for drugs, when applied as tonics, stimulants, sedatives, or narcotics.

The experiment was conducted by Dr. Kennedy, and is in line with a long series of investigations that have occupied his leisure hours for some time past.

Twenty trained nurses from the different hospitals in the city were invited to attend a musical recital at Dr. Kennedy's home.

Nurses were selected because the operation of taking the pulse is with them an every day matter, and it was not likely that the condition of their own pulse would be affected by having it taken. The subjects were taken at random, but a careful record of their relation to music in general and their physical characteristics was kept.

Dr. Kennedy presided at the mechanical piano player by which the music was produced. To get the heart beats of his subjects down to normal, and to put them into a proper mental and physical condition he first gave them "Annie Laurie."

"Tannhauser" Stirs Pulse.
"Annie Laurie" was followed by the Tannhauser overture with orchestral arrangement. With the piano player a tremendous volume of sound is possible. The contrast between the swelling notes of the march that mark the climax of the latter half of the overture and the final diminuendos of the "Pilgrim's chorus" was marked. The effect upon the subjects was equally prominent. Nearly every one responded to Wagner's harmonies with a much more rapid pulse increase, ranging from ten to twenty-five beats per minute. One young woman whose pulsations ran way up into the nineties confessed afterward that the Tannhauser overture was her favorite selection.

Two records were kept, one of the pulse beats and one of the blood pressure. The latter record permitted the interesting conclusion that listening to a favorable selection may produce the effect of relaxation on one person while it stimulates the heart action of another. This is alluded to as indicating that just as careful a study of a patient is as necessary before prescribing musical remedies as should precede the writing out of a prescription.

Russian Music Quiets All.

Tchakovsky's "Meditation," a quiet, restful number, followed the overture. There was a general response among the hearers manifested by diminished blood pressure and slower pulse beats. That is, with one exception. There was one young woman whose pulse went away above the high water mark fixed by the Tannhauser selection as she listened to the soothing strains of the Russian composer. The circumstance leaves an interesting field for speculation as to what mental associations might have been responsible for this unusual contrast effect.

After several other selections, including the "Angels' Serenade," during which the effects observed were decidedly at variance, Dr. Kennedy played Leybach's fifth nocturne. Here again the result was remarkable in that there was scarcely an exception to the decided character of the response. The harmonies in this number are woven about a pretty melody, non-intrusive in character. The effect of the whole number was most soothing. The pulse beats went down to the lowest ebb, away below normal, in the majority of cases, testifying to the appreciation of the musical effect.

SAD NEWS FOR MRS. CHARLES TARRANT

Telegram Received Last Evening Announced Death of Brother in New Mexico.

Last evening at eight-thirty o'clock Mrs. Charles Tarrant received a telegram from Albuquerque, New Mexico, stating her brother, Dr. Arthur L. Macumber, of Maine had passed away there. The deceased has been in the south for the past four years, having been forced to go to that portion of the country on account of consumption.

THE HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS PLAY HERE

Edgerton Will Meet Second Eleven
—Contest With Darlington
Will Be Close.

As a preliminary contest tomorrow afternoon the Edgerton high school will play with the second team of this city. The chances of a victory for the second team are excellent. In their game last week they outplayed a heavier team and rolled up a score of 16 against 0. They have shown up well in practice with the first team and should win by a good margin tomorrow. The first team has not such bright prospects for winning the laurels. Darlington is one of the strongest teams in the state and held Fort Atkinson to a tie on Fort's home grounds, while the locals succeeded in holding the Fort down to two touchdowns and crossing Fort's goal line once. This being the final game of the season a large crowd is anticipated. A large number of Janesville people who are working or staying in other places will be home for Thanksgiving and the great majority of them will attend the game. There is no big game that is very apt to attract any great number from here and the crowd of spectators should be one unprecedented in the history of high school football in this city.

R. H. COURTRIGHT CURIOUSLY HURT

Former Janesville Resident Seriously Injured in California, by Contact with Barb Wire.

Yesterday Mrs. E. M. Staplin of Prairie avenue received word of a peculiar and serious, if not fatal, accident, that happened to Mr. R. H. Courtright, her brother-in-law, who resides in California. He had entered a pasture to catch and halter a horse and succeeded in getting the rope around the horse's neck when the animal, frightened or enraged, pulled him into a barbed wire fence. The wire became wound about his limbs and he fell to the ground with the horse on him. He was terribly cut and one limb nearly severed from the body. There is also danger of the tetanus poisoning setting in. Mr. Courtright is known to a large circle of Janesville people, having lived in this city at one time.

The court adjourned until Monday.

KINDERGARTENS ENJOY THANKSGIVING PROGRAMS

During a half hour this morning the forty-five kindergarten scholars of the Jefferson school enjoyed the Indian Thanksgiving exercises arranged by the directors, Miss Margaret Jacobs and Miss Edith Loomis. There were songs and games and marches and a wigwam erected in one corner of the room was the particular delight of the little folks. The walls were hung with Indian blankets and Indian curios as well as articles made by the children and charcoal sketches of Indian life made by Miss Jacobs and hung on the blackboards, all contributed to make the scene an attractive and pleasing one. The children were remarkably well drilled in their parts and the large number of spectators—parents of the children—enjoyed the program as much as did the scholars. A luncheon was served at the conclusion of the exercises. Similar exercises were observed in all the kindergartens of the city. The decorations and programs were all suggestive of Thanksgiving.

BUTCHERS NOW PLAN A STRIKE

President Donnelly Given Full Authority To Call The Men Out.

BIG PACKING PLANTS IN DANGER

Bitter Feeling Prevails Against Employers, Exceeding in Intensity That Which Prevailed During the Tie-Up.

(Special by Scripps-Mellae.)

Chicago, Nov. 23.—By a unanimous vote the Cattle Butchers' union Tuesday night endorsed the strike at the Hammond plant and voted to hold themselves in readiness to respond to a walk-out order at all the other big plants in Chicago.

When the order to extend the strike will be given President Donnelly refused to say.

The meeting was the largest and most enthusiastic since the inauguration of the big strike last July. From expressions heard among the men as they left the hall, the feeling against the packers is more bitter than it was during the progress of the last strike.

A few men were secured by the Hammond company during the day, and telegrams were sent to the agents in Kansas City, Omaha, St. Joseph and East St. Louis to hurry men to Chicago. The strikers are watching the incoming trains and they claimed to have met five butchers who attended the union meeting and declared they would not go to work.

Has Plenty of Help.

President, McClellan of the National

Packing company said that almost half the usual force of skilled men had been procured, and that the trouble would be over in a few days.

The officers of the union, however, doubted the statement, and said they knew exactly what had been done. They declared that only 108 cattle were killed, and that the work was done by foremen and by two men who were brought from Kansas City the day before the strike was called.

Mr. McClellan said that he knew of no grievance the men had other than the discharge of John Schiek, and that if there were any other complaints they were not brought to his notice. If the strike is extended to the other plants, however, the men will insist on an agreement before they return to work.

President Donnelly stated that the local unions in the small cities throughout the country were ready to levy an assessment on their members to assist the cattle butchers in the big packing plants, and that there would be no lack of funds to continue the strike as long as it was confined to the cattle butchers alone.

RUSSIAN LIBERALS MODIFY MEMORIAL

To the Emperor in Order That Offense May Be Avoided—Hope for Reform.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 23.—That there may be no impression of opposition to imperial authority the final article of the zemstvo memorial has been so altered as to express no more than the hope that it is the wish of the Emperor to summon a national assembly.

The memorial will be presented to Minister of the Interior Sviatopolk-Mirsky and will be by him transmitted directly to the Czar.

There is no clew as to the outcome. In government circles, and even among many of those who participated in the meeting, the impression prevails that no change will be made. The entire situation is so unprecedented, however, that even the best informed hardly know what to expect.

Looks for Compromise.
"Probably there will be the usual attempt to temporize," said a prominent member of the zemstvo delegation. "We may not get all, but we should get something. The Emperor is kind hearted and sincerely desirous of helping the people, but the court and imperial family are opposed to anything like the suggestion of a constitution."

"No matter what the immediate result, however, we have gained a remarkable victory. We have put into concrete form our opinion that the present system in the end must spell ruin or revolution."

"We do not believe the people are prepared for a republic. We support the monarchical idea, but we believe it must be a constitutional monarchy, and that the Emperor must choose between the moderate program we offer or eventual revolution. If there is no result now we will continue the work of agitation and education. There will be a larger and a stronger meeting next year."

Liberals Are United.

The zemstvoists declare that the signature of the memorial by its presidents is eloquent testimony to the practically unanimous demand of the intelligent classes for representative government and an effective response to the possible claim of reactionaries that the conference was packed by promoters of the movement.

The meeting discussed and passed resolutions which will be submitted separately to the Emperor Nicholas through Minister Sviatopolk-Mirsky, praying for the abolition of the state of siege existing in many cities of Russia; for amnesty to all prisoners punished by administrative process or without trial by ordinary process of law.

PORT ARTHUR IS SAFE.

Russian Lieutenant Declares the City del Can Hold Out Till January.

Mukden, Nov. 23.—The Port Arthur garrison can hold out at least until the end of January, according to First Lieutenant Schupkoff, just arrived here from the beleaguered city, after thrilling adventures in passing the Japanese lines.

The Russians, Lieut. Schupkoff explains, have laid out three lines of defenses which the enemy must capture before they can reach the city, after which the defenders can retire to the coast forts, the strongest of all. The garrison, which comprises more than 4,000 men, is in good health and spirits.

The Japanese, on the other hand, are so confident of an early victory that they are making no effort to prepare for the shelter of their forces during the winter.

On the Shakhio river both the Japanese and Russian armies occupy such strongly fortified positions that an attack by either is practically out of the question until reinforcements give one or the other a sufficient preponderance in numbers to enable a flanking movement.

The Japanese lost 500 men in the attacks of Nov. 17 and Nov. 18, and were evidently disheartened. When they renewed the attack, Nov. 19, they sent out several battalions from Double Humped hill, but their movements lacked decision.

The Russians opened fire from Lone Tree hill and neighboring eminences. Shells burst in the midst of the advancing Japanese columns and quickly checked them. The Japanese also tried a turning operation at Chauludza, but there also they were dispersed.

Reports of the death of Gen. Kuroki persist, in spite of denials, and are revived by Chinese coming from the Japanese camps.

MISS MARY HUMPHREY WRITES OF STRANGE SCENES ON THE ISTHMUS

Tells of Masquerades and Bull Fights During Four Days' Celebration of Independence Day—Hospital Work Is Pleasant—Narrow Streets and Queer Dwellings of City of Panama.

(By Mary H. Humphrey.)

Panama, November 4, 1904. The city of Panama dates back to the sixteenth century for its foundation. Being founded by the Spanish, its buildings are all of the Spanish architecture and the streets are narrow and paved with cobblestones. The main streets of the city are not more than twenty feet wide and the

"plazas" in the heart of the city. These are laid out with walks, flower beds, green plants and tropical trees and plants. Most of the buildings are provided with benches where one can rest and enjoy every one has a bandstand which is used frequently by the band to entertain the people. The residences are located principally around these growing out from every ledge and cornice. Some of the walks of old Panama are still standing and are very picturesque.

One morning I accompanied the sergeant on his daily visit to the city market. It was a sight which beggars all description. The market is located near the beach. As it was six a. m. when we paid our visit, the tide was out. On the Pacific coast the tide rises thirteen feet, on the Atlantic only three or four feet. When the tide is out there is nothing but mud and stranded boats to be seen for a quarter of a mile out. It made one shudder to look at it.

The market is a long, narrow, low building, not nearly so extensive as one would expect to see in a city of 30,000 inhabitants. Nearly all were Chinamen who had vegetables, fruits and meats to sell. So filthy was the place, one soon lost his appetite for fruit and vegetables if he possessed one before going there. One could see all the tropical fruits and vegetables there if their noses and stomachs would permit them to make the rounds of the stands. I stood it very well until we struck the meat section. The odors there were intolerable. The meat, being up on beams, was black with flies and slimy from the heat and unsanitary conditions of the place. How any one could take it home with them and cook it, to say nothing of eating it, is past my understanding. (The meat for our consumption does not come from there.) Notwithstanding the bad odors and filth, the market was an interesting place. It is always interesting to see how the other half lives.

The 3rd of November was the first anniversary of the independence of the Republic of Panama, and it is being celebrated in all the cities and towns of the Republic. The celebration at Panama is more extensive than at any of the other cities and villages. It is to continue for four days. The morning is given over to games and the afternoon and evening hair dressing or one that is full of so to bull fights, processions and masquerades.

I was fortunate to be invited to the home of Miss Arias, a Spanish lady of some prominence in Panama. As the balcony of her home overlooked the plaza where all the celebrating was taking place, I had a fine view of it all. The center of the plaza was enclosed with a board fence, making an enclosure of perhaps a hundred feet in diameter. For two hours, from three to five, the public was entertained with a bull fight in this enclosure. The fight was exceedingly tame for none of the three bulls brought into the enclosure, one at a time, could be aroused to any degree of anger. Instead, they seemed stupefied with the noise and confusion about it. Do what they would the matadores could not get them to make an attack so the fight was abandoned and the enclosure given over to the masquers where they had a merry time dancing to the music furnished by the band. There were many beautiful and unique suits worn by the masquers. In the home adjoining that of Miss Arias were eight or ten beautiful Spanish ladies and gentlemen dressed in exquisite costumes. One young lady represented the wheel of fortune. Her costume was all in yellow and decorated with the lottery tickets, which are yellow. Her dark, clear complexion and black hair and eyes were well set off by the yellow costume and head-dress.

Another young lady represented a pansy. The gown was white but draped in such a way with green and purple draperies as to make a very good representation of a pansy. She carried a pansy fan and wore pansies in her hair.

But the most artistic costume was that representing a Roman beauty. The graceful Roman draperies of pink and blue set off the beauty of face and figure as no other costume did. Most of the gentlemen were dressed in the Spanish cavalier style. These young ladies and gentlemen were the elite of the city, one of them being the president's son. When the proper time arrived they all took carriages and drove around the plaza.

One of the unique costumes represented the yellow fever mosquito with the catcher carrying a net following closely at his heels. The advent of the mosquito specialist in this country could not but give rise to comment and some ridicule from the residents of this section, so this hit at him was fully appreciated. The costume was well gotten up, with wings, legs, head and body in exact representation of that kind of a mosquito. The engineering corps were also represented with transit man bearing the transit and rod-man following behind. Even Uncle Sam was there in all his glory of tall hat, pointed beard, pigeon-tailed coat and striped trousers.

It was a gay, well behaved crowd. Each day has its special features. This afternoon (a Saturday) the general of the Panama army who led the rebellion a year ago, and his wife, held a reception, which many of the nurses are to attend.

The Spanish people of wealth and refinement at Panama are having their children educated in the states, either at New York or San Francisco, so that the young people and most of their parents speak English. They are very hospitable to us nurses, scarcely a day passes but that we are invited to some of their homes, and especially now during their "Fourth of July" celebration.

The Hospitals in the Canal Zone. At present there are but two hospitals in the Canal Zone, one at Colon and one at Ancon. Both of these were built by the French in 1881 and have been carried on by the French Catholic Sisters up to the time the government came into possession of the Canal Zone. Last June, when the Canal Commission came here to take possession of the Canal Zone, Miss Hibbard, with two trained nurses, accompanied the Commission and they at once took charge of the hospitals. There was much preparatory work to be done. The buildings were in a bad state of decay and the hospital furniture was decrepit and out of date. In August eight more nurses came down and the hospitals began to receive patients. Everything was in a crude condition but order and system is gradually being evolved. In time the hospitals will be well equipped and the work systemized so that it can be carried on with little friction and comparative ease. At present there are twenty-three nurses at Ancon and four at Colon. The hospital at Ancon is intended to management has been taken away from the Catholic Sisters, they have not been removed from the hospital grounds. Quarters are reserved for them and they still have charge of the laundry work and the diet kitchen for the convalescent patients in each ward.

Miss Hibbard is eminently fitted by training and experience, for taking charge of so great a work as this hospital system in the Canal Zone. She was in charge of the hospital work in Cuba during the Spanish American war, and was at the head of the corps of nurses who volunteered their services and went to South Africa on the famous "Mabie" during the Boer War.

Many of the nurses have been in army service at Jacksonville, in Cuba, in the Philippines and in China. They find government service to be very satisfactory and in many ways much pleasanter than either private duty or hospital service in private or state institutions. The hours of duty are shorter, the work not so be the headquarters, and the other hospitals adjuncts of this one. Here all of the surgical and severe medical cases are to be cared for. The plan is to have small emergency hospitals established at convenient points along the line of the canal but all severe cases will be brought to the Ancon hospitals from these emergencies. The pay is better and what is more than all else, a nurse receives nothing but the utmost respect, kindest attention and consideration from patients, doctors and officials.

The hours for day duty are, one corps from 7 a. m. to 3 p. m. The second corps from 7 to 9 a. m., and from 3 to 9 p. m., giving eight-hour gency hospitals.

A hospital for convalescents and tired out nurses and doctors is being fitted up on Taboga Island, which lies a few miles out in the Pacific. The hospital system is well planned and with the sanitary precautions that are being taken to rid the Canal Zone of every pest and condition that gives rise to disease, there ought to be a very low death rate here.

The hospital at Ancon is composed of twenty or more separate one-story buildings. Many of them are connected by verandas, but many more have no connection. Each building constitutes a ward; there are several colored medical and surgical wards, since the larger part of the patients duty for the day work and ten hours for the night work, from 9 p. m. to 7 a. m.

The wards being so open and the buildings being one story, it makes the life of the nurses really out of doors while on duty—a decided difference from the close, stuffy buildings it is our lot to work in twelve hours a day in the hospitals in the states. To be in a ward for eight hours, containing twenty or thirty beds, all full, and perhaps every patient black as colored blood can make them, and have no bad odors to inhale, nothing but pure oxygen to breathe, is recommendation enough for hospital service in the tropics. As to temperature, the average are colored people. There are Spanish, Italian and American wards, both surgical and medical. The buildings have high ceilings with ventilators and the windows and doors are all large and open. No screens are used but each bed has a netting over it which at sundown is pulled down and tucked under the mattresses so that no mosquitoes can get at the patients. Indeed, every bed in all the dormitories for the nurses, orderlies, attendants, doctors, in fact every bed in this country, is provided with this netting. It is strange at first to be tucked in so securely but one soon gets used to it.

Although the nursing and hospital maximum is 50 degrees. The nights are cool enough so one is glad to have a blanket over them after midnight.

Although this is the rainy season yet there has been but one shower since Sunday, and this is Friday. On Sunday the rain came down in sheets for two hours. Buildings forty feet away were invisible so great was the downpour.

The rains are the one unpleasant feature of the life here. The nurses' quarters are a quarter of a mile from the nearest ward building. To walk this distance through one of these

S. currency which is equivalent to gold, will exchange for ten dollars and fifty cents in "tin money." One has to have a bag to carry this money in. Pocket books or purses are of no account here.

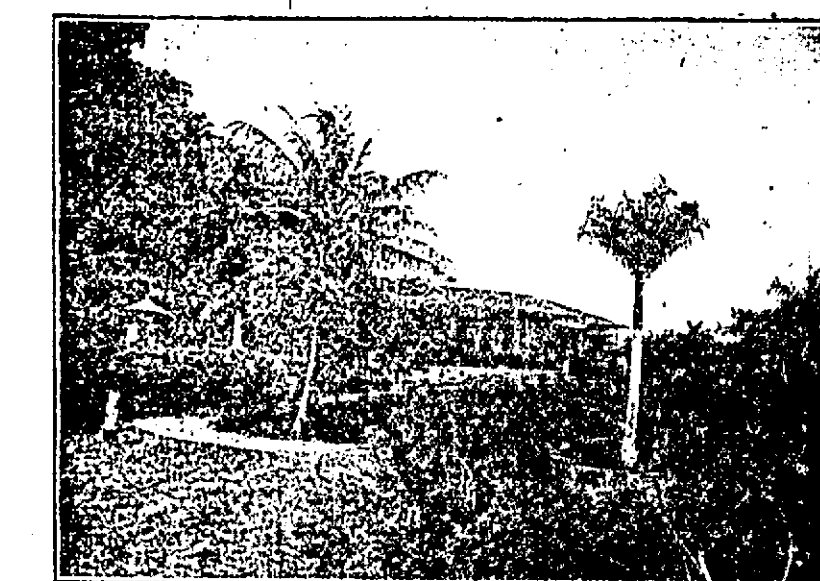

As what sidewalks there are, and not many streets are provided with even an excuse for one, are not more than three feet wide and built out from the shops as a part of them, walking on these walks is exceedingly unpleasant. The shops are not clean. They are built directly on the street the same as the shops so none of them have any lawns and no where in all the streets is there a speck of grass or a tree or shrub except in the plazas. The stairway to the second and third floors is always inside this first floor enclosure and when the first floor is raised this stairway is dark and dreary enough to give one "the creeps." The rooms on the second and third floors are large and airy with plenty of windows and doors, all opening on to balconies. No carpets and but few rugs are used here. The floors are mostly tile or marble in the more pretentious homes. Hard and soft wood is used in the homes of those less favored by fortune. Curtains and draperies are very little used here on account of the humidity of the atmosphere. The homes lacking these little touches of decoration seem barren and unhome-like.

Although Panama claims to have 30,000 inhabitants, so compactly do they live that it does not appear to be a town of more than four or five thousand inhabitants.

ing but stalls and most of them are reeking with filth and vile odors. To those who have visited "Jerusalem" at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, this description of the streets, sidewalks and shops or stalls will be clearly understood. To one who has never seen this ancient style of buildings and streets, it will be difficult to make a word picture vivid enough to give them a clear conception of it. There are a few modern buildings and these are used by what Americans there are in business in Panama. The office of the Canal Commission is in one of these buildings.

St. Paul

The St. Paul railway lines followed the sensational cut in rates of last week by announcement of an open $10 round trip rate from St. Paul to Chicago in effect until Nov. 26, and limited for return purposes until Dec. 1. Another surprise is concealed in the action. It has been discovered that certain of the roads were using the $10 round trip rate to St. Louis, in effect via Chicago, for the handling of St. Paul-Chicago business. The through St. Louis tickets were validated for return passage in Chicago, the Chicago-St. Louis portion of the ticket being taken up. It is said that one of the lines has been following this practice which is a serious violation of the rules and usages usually prevailing since the St. Louis rate was first made.

General Notes

For the trip of President Roosevelt and family to St. Louis the Pennsylvania company is preparing what is said to be the finest special train of cars ever seen in this country. It will leave Washington Friday evening. Every effort is being made by the railway officials to insure against accident to the train. On Friday all division engineers who have jurisdiction over any part of the track over which the train will pass were ordered out for special inspection to cover the time from the present until the presidential train arrives in St. Louis. A "pilot" train will precede all the way two miles ahead and a track walker will be on every mile of the road from Washington to St. Louis, covering his mile of track just ahead of the "pilot" train. There will also be a daylight inspection by the chief engineers of the system during the thirty-six hours preceding the passage of the presidential train.

The Rock Island system has ordered 1,500 refrigerators and 1,500 box cars, and will soon place other contracts for freight. Business has increased so much that the equipment is far from adequate. New passenger coaches will also be purchased.

After fifty-six years' service as secretary-treasurer of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad, James B. Winston has resigned his double office and F. J. Duke was appointed to succeed him.

Senator W. A. Clark has announced that the San Pedro and Salt Lake road would be completed within thirty days.

THINKS IT SAVES MONEY FOR PEOPLE

L. H. Catchpole Writes of the Children's Home Society—Reply to His Argument.

Janesville, Wis., Nov. 22, 1904.

Mr. Editor:
In yesterday's issue of your paper, under the title of "A Mistake," you say:—"The county board of supervisors, through a committee, is considering a proposition to appropriate $25 to each dependent child committed to a society which makes a business of finding homes for such children."

Let me say, the board, last week, passed such a resolution, by a vote of 36 to 1.

You further say, "The board does not seem to know much about the society," and from what follows the reader must infer that the society is very little known in the state.

The society referred to is The Children's Home Society of Wisconsin. It was incorporated about twelve years ago. Hon. O. A. Wright of Madison is its president, and Rev. J. P. Dysart of Milwaukee its superintendent. It has a board of sixteen directors, made up of prominent clergymen of the different Christian churches of the state, and such men as Ex-Gov. Scofield, Oconto; Edwin D. Cox, Whitefish; Hon. J. H. Stout, Menominee; S. S. Newton, Milwaukee; W. H. Gilbert, West Superior, and others.

During the past twelve years the society has placed 1,500 dependent children in worthy homes. Its agents look after and care for these children as provided by the statutes of the state, and secure the adoption of the greater number of them. Last year the society thus cared for nearly two hundred children and every county in the state has homes where they may be found.

From these statements it would seem that the people of Wisconsin must know of "The Children's Home Society."

The article further says:—"Every commitment means expense to the county and this being the case it was better to limit the expense to $25. Presumably it is the duty of the county to care for its dependent children. Members of the board of supervisors know, and every citizen of the county may know if he chooses to investigate, that to pay said society $25 for each child committed to it, is a matter of financial economy to the county. I am glad to make this explanation as I wish the public to know that the Children's Home Society of Wisconsin is constantly earning for needy children by placing them directly in Christian homes, and helping their best interests, physically, intellectually, and morally, with a view to good citizenship."

L. G. CATCHPOLE, District Superintendent.
The above communication throws some light on the Children's Home Society, and gives the impression that the work is purely philanthropic. It costs something, however, to keep agents in the field, and money is solicited from people whose sympathies are aroused by the character of the work.

The church-going people of the city will remember occasions when little children were exhibited from the platform on Sunday morning to stimulate a collection which was to follow at the close of the service.

While it is true that the board of supervisors authorized the payment of $25 to this society for each child committed it is also true that this action was taken as a matter of self-protection, as under the law the county is liable to any amount that may be fixed by the bylaws of the society.

The Gazette still maintains that this kind of work can be more intelligently accomplished under state supervision. The home at Sparta has room for three hundred children, while the population rarely exceeds half that number. If the society represented by Mr. Catchpole is competent to do all the work the state better surrender what it is attempting to do and turn the entire work over to the Children's Home society.

PRESS COMMENT.

Racine Journal: The official vote of Illinois gives Roosevelt a plurality of 301,503 and a majority over all of 187,232. The McKinley plurality was but 94,921. The plurality for Deneen was 236,195.

Boston Globe: An obviously ignorant person writes to a New York paper to ask what books it would be advisable for him to read to enable him to appear at ease in good society. After he has had more experience in society he will doubtless learn that it isn't necessary to read any books at all.

Boston Herald: To test the honesty of the postoffice clerks put a two cent stamp and an address on a

EXPORTS.

The export record of the United States in the twelve months ending with October, 1904, just presented by the Department of Commerce and Labor through its Bureau of Statistics, is especially noteworthy in view of the fact that despite the unusually small exports of the breadstuffs the total value of exports of all kinds is larger than in any preceding year ending with the date above named. The exports of breadstuffs in the ten months ending with October are less than half in value to those of the corresponding period of 1901 and 1902. Yet, despite this fact, that the value of breadstuffs exported falls 86 million dollars below the record for the corresponding period of 1901, the total value of all merchandise exported in the twelve months ending with October, 1904, is 60 million dollars greater than in the corresponding period of last year, and exceeds by nearly 10 million dollars the largest total ever known in a twelve-month period ending with October.

This remarkable fact, that despite a loss from $6 to 153 million dollars in exports of one group of articles, the grand total of exports exceeds that of any preceding year, is accounted for chiefly by a corresponding growth in the exportation of manufactures as a group and of raw cotton. Exports of manufactures in the nine months ending with September, 1904 exceed by 45 million dollars those for the corresponding period of the preceding year, and the figures of October when completed will probably show that the exports of manufactures in the ten months' period are more than 50 million dollars in excess of those for the corresponding period of the preceding year. In a large number of the important classes of manufactures the figures of recent months show a marked growth over those for the corresponding period of last year. The other factor in producing this remarkable growth, which has offset the reduction in exports of breadstuffs, is raw cotton, of which the exports in the ten months ending with October exceed by 22 million dollars those of the corresponding period of 1902.

Among the articles grouped by the Bureau of Statistics under the general term of manufactures, iron and steel manufactures show for the nine months for which a record is already at hand 20 million dollars increase over the corresponding period of the preceding year; copper, an increase of 23 millions, and mineral oil an increase of about 10 millions, while in most other manufactured articles the figures for 1904 show little change as compared with those of the immediately preceding year.

In exports of provisions the figures for the ten months ending with October, 1904, show a fall of about 11 million dollars as compared with the corresponding period of 1903, while exports of live cattle show an increase of 4 1/2 million dollars in the ten months' period of 1904 as compared with the corresponding period of the preceding year. In breadstuffs the reduction occurs in practically all of the important classes. Corn exports during the ten months ending with October, 1904, falls 23 million dollars below the figures for the corresponding period of 1903; wheat exports, over 41 millions below those of the corresponding period of last year; and flour exports, 16 millions below the same month of 1903.

The preliminary statement of the Bureau of Statistics shows an exportation of only 10,982,193 bushels of wheat in the ten months ending with October 1904, against 22,554,798 bushels in the corresponding months of last year; 9,918,705 barrels of flour, against 15,332,587 barrels in the corresponding months of last year; and 36,998,921 bushels of corn, against 50,207,525 bushels in the corresponding months of last year.

The fact that the grand total of exports for the twelve months ending with October, 1904, exceeds in value that of any corresponding twelve months in the history of the export trade, is thus rendered especially remarkable in view of the great reduction in exports of breadstuffs above mentioned. The figures of the twelve months ending with October, 1904, show an increase over those of the corresponding period of 1903 amounting to over 600 million dollars, while the import figures for the corresponding period show an increase of a little less than 200 millions. The export figures for the twelve months ending with October, 1904, show an increase of 70 per cent, and the import figures for that year an increase of 22 per cent over the figures for the corresponding months ending with October, 1903.

A GOLDEN OPPORTUNITY.

The next congress will contain an overwhelming preponderance of republicans. It will contain some democrats of the old-fashioned school, besides those who are democrats in name only, being in reality socialists, populists or other varieties of Bryanists. In the republican majority there will be a large class of hide-bound, blind and deaf protectionists, who will fight any and all demands to reduce the tariff unless they are whipped into line by their leaders. They will, at all events, act as an obstacle to thorough revision, and may be counted upon to do their best to nullify, as far as possible, such action as may be taken in that direction.

We notice, here and there, claims by some of these people that the election was an expression of public opinion against interference with the tariff. This is a driving nonsense. The country's vote so far as it is susceptible of a partisan interpretation, was cast in favor of the policy of tariff revision by its friends—tariff revision there can be, if the president stands firm, and we believe there will be, because we believe the president will stand firm.

Assuming that an extra session of the new Congress will be called in the early summer to deal with this matter, it is not too soon to urge upon fair-minded democrats the fact that they can accomplish a vast amount of good for their country by strengthening the hands of the president in the effort to lower the tariff in reasonable degree. It is too much to expect that the Congress next year will abandon the theory of protection, nor is there any reason why it should do so because the mandate of the country cannot be interpreted to mean any such thing. The country, however, demands a real revision of the tariff, and if it cannot get it from the republican party in the next four years, it will get it from some other party.

In a sense, the republicans are doing what in England was called "dishing the Whigs" or in our common phrase, "stealing the other fellow's thunder." In undertaking to revise the tariff, the conservative party in England had almost consistently followed this policy. Its opponents have agitated many things, and largely educated public opinion upon them, only to find the conservative party enacting them into law and getting the glory therefrom. The republican party has done the same kind of thing more than once, and now has a magnificent opportunity to strengthen itself by doing the same thing again, but party fealty is after all only a means to the larger end of patriotism, and we do not doubt there are many good democrats who are willing that the republicans shall have the credit for doing good provided only that the good be done. It was in a great measure an independent and non-partisan vote that elected the president and his party into office. Can we not have an extension of this, so to speak, era of good feeling into congress, at all events until the tariff has been readjusted?

EFFECT OF A GOLD BASIS.

The beneficial effect of stable monetary conditions in Mexico as a result of the action taken to establish her currency upon a gold basis can scarcely be over-estimated. Employees of labor paying two Mexican dollars to a workman will lose the difference between 46 and 50 in the value of each of those dollars; but what may be lost in this way will be more than gained in the stability given to prices. The railroads of Mexico especially ought to profit largely by reason of this change to a gold basis.

What the victory for the gold standard accomplished in this country is known of all men. Recently the currency of the Philippine Islands was by a beneficent arrangement reorganized upon a gold basis, doing away with the depression caused by fluctuating rates of exchange. What has been effected there is summed up in the following cablegram from Governor Wright under date of Oct. 30: "The gold standard is an established fact, and now meets the approval of the entire republic. Business conditions are much improved.

Milwaukee News: Merely heard feelings along the "reform" aspirants for the United States senate it is understood that Mr. La Follette may be forced to take the place himself.

Evening Wisconsin: It is stated that Indians on Wisconsin reservations buy lemon extracts in order to secure alcohol, because the sale of whiskey is not permitted among them. If this be true, there will be many more "good Indians" unless the sale of poisoned extracts is forbidden.

Milwaukee Sentinel: It is hoped that Judge Webb, W. D. Connor, and representative Cooper and Esch realize how important it is that Governor La Follette shall go to the United States senate now that he has passed his primary election law.

Boston Herald: The hen patiently "sets" only through the over-pressure of a mysterious creative impulse that masters her restless impulses to be outside scratching and cackling instead of working for posterity.

Many Are Insured.

An expert statistician figures that there are to-day some 5,000,000 of adult males (that is, one out of every three) in this country who carry life insurance, outside of the fraternal orders and the like. There were, at the end of last year, nearly 19,000,000 policies in force. There are only a little more than twice as many adult males to-day as there were forty years ago.—World's Work.

ANAEMIA

is thin blood. It causes pale faces, white lips, weak nerves and lack of vitality. A blood-enriching, fat producing food-medicine is needed. Scott's Emulsion goes to the root of the trouble, strengthens and enriches the blood, and builds up the entire system. For anaemic girls, thin boys, and enfeebled mothers, it is the standard remedy. It builds up and strengthens the entire system with wonderful rapidity.

NO BIBLE STUDY IN THE AFTERNOON

Charles-Norton Hunt Will Speak as Usual at the Baptist Church Tomorrow Night.

On account of tomorrow being Thanksgiving day there will be no Bible study at the Baptist church in the afternoon. The regular evening service will be held and as there is no regular midweek prayer meeting at the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational churches it is expected that a large number from these congregations will be present at the Baptist church to hear Mr. Hunt. On Friday afternoon the Bible study will again be taken up and at four o'clock on the same day there will be boys and girls' special meeting. Mr. Hunt continues to attract large audiences, and his addresses, which are new each evening, continue to interest all who go. Mr. Hunt has accomplished a great deal of good while here and his work has shown results in all parts of the city.

MAN SEEKING AID HAS NO CLAIM ON ROMAN CATHOLICS

During the past few days a member of the Old Catholic society of Chicago who is said to be seeking contributions for an orphan's home, is said to have approached members of the Roman Catholic church. It is claimed that it has not been made clear to them that this organization is entirely different and apart from the Roman church. Dean McGlinity wishes that this fact be made clear to the members of his congregation.

ESTABLISHED 18 YEARS.

HOPING BREWER WILL BE CALLED

TO THE POSITION OF GRADUATE MANAGER AT MADISON.

LOCAL PEOPLE ARE ACTIVE

In Urging His Candidacy for Place—How He Developed Maddock, the Great Michigan Tackle.

Much interest is now being manifested in this city by friends of Chester L. Brewer in "boosting" him for the position of graduate manager of athletics at the university. The efforts of the alumni and former students which took tangible shape in the formation of the University club are being enthusiastically seconded at present by business men and others who have had no connection with the university but who want to see the Janesville man secure the position.

A circular letter has been prepared by the University club in which Mr. Brewer is highly endorsed for the place and these letters are being sent to alumni of the university requesting that they use their influence to secure favorable action by the athletic board, on Mr. Brewer's name.

Unless "pull" is employed to secure the position, by some one of the various applicants who are now in the field, it is believed that on merit the Janesville man will have no difficulty in winning out. Outside of Stagg at Chicago, Baird at Michigan and Huff at Illinois, who are regarded as fixtures at their respective institutions, it is difficult to find another man who has had similar experience or who possesses equal ability as a manager of athletics.

In 1898 Mr. Brewer accepted the position of manager of athletics at Albion college and during the six years of his connection with that institution succeeded in developing that department to a condition of superiority hitherto believed impossible at a minor college.

The great University of Michigan tackle, Maddock, came to Albion in 1901 from the pine-woods of the peninsula and Brewer taught him the Wisconsin style of tackle play. Maddock's work was so effective against the Michigan university in the game which they played with Albion college that year, that Coach Yost "induced" him to enter the larger institution in the fall of 1902. Against Wisconsin, in the game at Marshall field in 1902, Maddock proved invulnerable. His absence from the Michigan lineup during the present season is due to the fact that Brewer recommended him for the position of football coach at the University of Utah, which position he had himself been offered.

In 1903 a better salary coupled with other opportunities, induced him to resign his position at Albion and enter upon similar work at the Michigan Agricultural College, at Lansing. Here, as at Albion, he was given a seat in the faculty and due to the hearty co-operation of the president, whose enthusiasm led him to erect electric lights about the practice field, he has developed a creditable football team for the past two seasons out of material which had before been regarded as hopeless. Last spring he developed a baseball team of considerable ability, defeating Wisconsin in the game at Lansing, and winning the college championship of the state. His track team also won the state track championship and was represented at the World's Fair championships at St. Louis, tying for third place.

In his previous work Mr. Brewer has not only managed the business affairs of the athletic department, but has also coached the teams under his charge. At Wisconsin it would be an impossible task for one man to perform this double duty, although his knowledge of all college sports will be of great assistance to the respective coaches.

The plan of the Michigan institutions, of giving the graduate manager a seat in the faculty is believed by many Wisconsin men to be an excellent one, as it lends more dignity and prestige to the office and removes it from the influence of college politics. An effort will be made by several prominent local alumni to bring about this change, in the interests of clean athletics, no matter whom the board selects for the position of graduate manager.

The success which has attended Manager Brewer's efforts at Lansing have led various colleges and universities to attempt to secure his services, but the Michigan authorities have prevented his going by an annual increase in salary. The University of Utah in 1901 made inducements to him and since that time the University of North Carolina and Ohio university have made overtures.

MRS. RICH BRANDS THEM AS PURE FABRICATIONS

Statements Attributed to Her Concerning Miss Halle Are Denied.

Statements appearing in several of the morning papers, quoting at length from alleged conversations with Mrs. Eugene Rich concerning Miss Leah J. Halle, are emphatically denied by the latter. She says that the stories attributed to her of rejected suitors and engagement rings are pure fabrications, and that the printing of them is outrageous.

TO SPEND DAY FAR FROM HOME

JANESVILLE PEOPLE IN THE DISTANT CLIMES.

SEVERAL NEAR THE EQUATOR

Will Bask Beneath the Palms—One Adopted Citizen by the Frozen River of Antung.

Possibly the idea of openly giving thanks is lost sight of in the anticipations of a good dinner and an altogether happy day, but if everyone is happy it may be taken for granted that, being a normal creature, he is grateful. Tomorrow is a holiday which will bring back many pleasant ing recollections to Janesville people who are far from home, and, of course, we are confident that these recollections will be tinged with regret that the particular portion of this planet which they chance to be occupying is not Janesville and never can be.

In the Philippines

As far as climate is concerned it seems probable that the day in Janesville will be almost as fine as any thing Old Mexico, Panama, or the Philippines can offer. Mrs. Gertrude Granger Black and her husband will spend the day at Davao, island of Mindanao. In all probability wild-hog will have to take the place of the conventional turkey on the table of Capt. L. T. Richardson, who is located on the same island, at Maribul, in the district of the wild Moros. Brigadier General George M. Randall will doubtless spend his holiday in the gay city of Manila, where he has been located since a year ago last year. In recent letters to his sister, Mrs. C. T. McKenney, he states that the weather is warm and pleasant.

GERTRUDE GRANGER BLACK

Mexico and Panama
That Miss Mary Humphrey will have a pleasant day at Ancon, republic of Panama, one must feel assured upon gazing at the pictures of the wonderful tropical verdure which appear elsewhere in today's paper. Mr. and Mrs. R. W. McLean will spend the day at Chihuahua, Old Mexico, about 250 miles south of El Paso. Clinton Wilcox will be a Thanksgiving sojourner in Silver City.

GEORGE RANDALL

In North Manchuria
Mrs. C. V. Hibbard has received word from her husband that he is now in the province of Antung, that the river is frozen up, and that further word from him must not be expected for several months. He is travelling with the Japanese army, conducting a Y. M. C. A. tent for the soldiers at the front.

In London Town
If Miss Marcella Withington observes the day at all in London, after her five years' residence there, it is probable that golden pheasant rather than turkey will be discussed at the principal meal of the day. When Stanley Tallman and Dr. P. H. Field were in England great preparations had already been commenced for a Christmas celebration which is much more elaborate than in this country and extends over a period of several weeks.

IS CHARGED WITH SERIOUS CRIME

James Kerwin of Beloit Here To Await Trial—Mrs. Gray His Chosen Victim.

James Kerwin of Beloit was brought to this city this morning by Chief of Police Scheibel for that place to be lodged in the county jail to await hearing on the charge of assaulting Mrs. Gray of Beloit. The examination in Judge Booth's court in Beloit yesterday showed that he had besides attempting his brutish crime blackened both of the eyes of Mrs. Gray and pounded her almost into insensibility. His trial will come up in the Beloit court Nov. 30. Kerwin has not a clear record to look back upon and has served time in the county jail before.

James Kerwin was taken to the municipal court at half-past three this afternoon.

MATINEE HOUR IS CHANGED TO THREE

For "The Village Postmaster" at the Myers Theatre Tomorrow—Man-tell Opera Co. Tuesday.

In order to accommodate patrons it has been decided by the management to change the hour for the matinee of "The Village Postmaster," which appears at the Myers theatre tomorrow, to three o'clock instead of 2:30 p. m. It is just announced that J. Saunders Gordon will present the Italian prima donna, Eugenia Mantelli, and several other artists, including Signor Archibald Alberti, baritone, in scenes from "Carmen," "Faust," and "Il Trovatore," at the Myers theatre next Tuesday evening.

TAX LEVY FOR ROCK COUNTY

For the Year 1904 Amounts to $151,709.50—Three Thousand Higher Than Last Year.

As just completed, the tax levy for Rock county for 1904 amounts to $151,709.50. This is about $5,000 higher than last year's levy of $148,697.08. The tax is partially made up as follows: State, $40,344.73; and county, $70,000. Last year the state tax was $37,712.95 and the county tax $65,000. The total tax the city of Janesville pays is a little over $32,000 and Beloit something in the neighborhood of $24,000. Beloit's big pay-rolls that cast Janesville in the shade, do not seem to show up in the tax-levy.

TO GIVE THANKS IN THE CHURCHES

Services Will Be Held in the Morning at the Baptist and Trinity Churches.

The Protestant churches of the city have made arrangements for special Thanksgiving day services to be held tomorrow morning. At the Baptist church at eleven o'clock the Congregational, Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist people will join in union services. Music will be furnished by the church quartet composed of Mrs. C. L. Mohr, Mrs. Fannie Clark, Mr. Van Pool, and Mr. George Parish. Rev. Denison will preach the sermon on the topic: "The Christianizing of the Nations."

The two Episcopal congregations of the Trinity and Christ churches will unite in worship at the Trinity church at ten o'clock. The services will be the regular Thanksgiving worship, according to the ritual and the sermon will be delivered by Rev. Barrington. There will also be Thanksgiving services at St. Peter's Lutheran church at 10:30 a. m.

PRICE OF TURKEYS WAS HIGHEST YET

Retailed at Eighteen Cents—Some Dealers Did Not Get Promised Deliveries at Fifteen Cents.

Turkey, contrary to custom, will not be the central piece on every table in Janesville tomorrow. The prevailing prices of eighteen and twenty cents per pound were higher than a large number of local residents feared, or could afford, to pay. Chickens and ducks will be used largely as substitutes, though these also are not the lowest in retailing at a shilling. Several of the dealers who early in the season contracted with the farmers to buy at fifteen cents a pound were disappointed. One farmer notified a dealer to whom he had agreed to sell at fifteen cents at Thanksgiving time that he thought he could get a better price for them and would hold them until Christmas.

SPECIAL TIDINGS FOR THE GAZETTE

COME FROM SOURCES NEAR AND REMOTE.

THE FIRST IN PANAMA FIELD

Exclusive Stories From The Isthmus Are Attracting Attention—Madison Service and Country Jots.

Particular attention is called to the interesting letters of Miss Mary Humphrey on the Canal Zone which appear today on page 2 of the Gazette. These letters and accompanying cuts give the best representation of the life to be encountered in the United States possessions in the republic of Panama. Particular attention is called to this service inasmuch as the Gazette is the first and only newspaper and magazine that is today publishing letters from a correspondent in this portion of the world and that the cuts were made from the photographs taken on the scene and are reproduced for the first time in this country today.

General Service
At this time the Gazette wishes to call its readers' attention to this special service and remind them also of the fact that in the past it has printed interesting pen pictures of the Japanese islands, the Philippines, of Continental tours, in fact of all parts of the world where Janesville people have wandered. The Scripps-McIntee telegraph service which is used in the Gazette covers the entire world. Each day special dispatches have been received through this news service of the latest doings in both Europe, Asia, Africa, the Philippines and all parts of the United States. The murder of the unfortunate chauffeur Bate of Chicago was known by Janesville readers as soon as it was known to the public in Chicago. Incidents without number can be cited to show that the Gazette's telegraphic service is a complete factor in its way. Added to this the service is supplemented by the daily service of the American Press Association and the Kellogg service.

Local News
Particular attention is paid to local news and the Gazette has in addition to its city workers a corps of sixty-five correspondents throughout the county, who not only furnish a weekly letter but also inform the office of any particular news immediately by telephone. Now there is a special correspondent at Madison who looks after the Capital city gossip and attends to the legislature. During the coming winter this will be important news and particular attention will be paid to this branch of the service.

Short Stories
In addition to the continued story which runs in each issue of the paper the Gazette prints from time to time short stories, some of the local interest, some general. Its press comment bureau is particularly excellent and gives an epitome of the news and opinions of the press throughout the country. On page one is to be found the brief bits of state and telegraphic news which with the daily telegraph service keeps the Janesville readers in touch with all the outside world.

Rail and Shop
Particular attention is paid to the railways and the factories in which. It has recently been shown by statistics, the lives of fully one-third of our people are centered.

NEW DEVELOPMENT IN THE MYSTERY

Is Captured Man "Dove"; or Is Dove, Hugg, and Is Hugg, Delavan?—
Local Officers Say, No.

The mysterious "Mr. Dove" in the sensational late murder case is supposed to have been captured in the person of George W. Hugg. A man answering the description of Hugg was arrested at a small railroad station on the Rock Island line between Minnoka and Morris, Ill. Mr. Hugg, it is claimed, is the same as George H. Delavan, alias George H. Smith, who in the fall of 1900 drugged and robbed a man by the name of A. M. Smith in the Grand hotel in this city. At that time he was arrested by the late John Hogan and brought up in the municipal court on the charge of stealing a gold watch, chain and chain valued at thirty dollars. The evidence in the case showed that Hugg, under the name of Delavan, had made the acquaintance of A. M. Smith at the same hotel in which the robbery was committed. A. M. Smith was sick with a cold and Delavan succeeded in persuading him to go to bed and went for a strong hot drink as a cure for the cold. He secured the mixture at the hotel bar and by this means drugged Smith. He then robbed him of the watch and chain. It was only with difficulty that the man's life was saved. After he had been pronounced guilty he was sentenced to three years at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Waupun, his sentence to commence on the 10th day of January, 1901. The hearsay evidence against him in the present case is that he was captured on a route supposed to have been taken by the fugitive "Dove." A man of his description and wearing the light overcoat and checked suit characteristic of "Dove" was seen several times on the streets of Lemont early last week. His Bertillon description that was taken in Milwaukee is said by the dispatches to be exactly that of Mr. Dove. Hugg was sentenced to Chicago bidwell after his Wisconsin experiences and escaped from there six weeks ago. He has a long criminal record as a gentleman crook and is wanted by the police now on the charge of stealing two horses in Illinois cities.

That the captured person is Hugg is denied by one of the morning Chicago papers while another says that the Chicago police are still looking for both "Dove" and Hugg, believing them to be different persons. Janesville police authorities are of the opinion that Delavan and Hugg are one and the same but that Delavan and "Dove" are two different persons. Officer Brown says that Delavan was a large raw-boned man and ex-Sheriff William Appleby, who took Delavan to Waupun, stated the man was five feet eight inches tall at least, while the descriptions of "Dove" all give his height as five feet five or six inches with fine features.

ALDERMEN AMAZED BY GEORGE M'KEY

And His Tricks of Leggerdom at the Big Smoker Last Evening—A Hundred Present.

It was a merry party of over a hundred that gathered at the Shinniship Golf club pavilion last evening to commemorate the close of the political campaign and the restoration of complete harmony among all who participated. As a silent protest against the manner in which the men have been ignored of late by the ladies, the tables were arranged for six handed cichre but none of the fair ones were bidden to the gathering. After enjoying the scene of the tables set for guests who were not to be present, the plans were altered, as no one present cared particularly for that game anyway. Another game was substituted, while those who did not care to participate retired to the kitchen to witness the wonderful works of magic of George M'Key. His card tricks made the eyes of five of the city aldermen bulge and several wagers were won and lost. About nine o'clock a big luncheon consisting of every delicacy known to these parts and some imported from foreign shores, was spread on large tables at one end of the hall and the guests were invited to draw near and help themselves. The card playing continued until about one o'clock and prizes were awarded David Holmes and J. C. Ulrich. After that a chorus of thirty voices was organized under the direction of Victor P. Richardson and old time classics were sung. Among the guests from outside who were present were: Division Supt. Pochin of the North-Western road, Phil J. Rupp of Milwaukee, and Harry Davies of Olyria, Ohio. Great credit for the success of the affair belongs to A. M. Valentine, who on account of a recent affliction in his family was unable to be present, and to Secretary J. P. Baker.

PRESIDENT DALAND PROVES HIMSELF AN ABLE ORGANIST

It was with pleasure and satisfaction that a large and appreciative audience listened to the organ recital given at the Congregational church in this city last evening by Professor Daland, president of Milton college, assisted by Miss Crandall, violinist. A hundred and twenty-five persons from Milton were in the city to be present. Both Mr. Daland and Miss Crandall are masters of the art of music and their rendition of the numbers made the recital a success from a musical standpoint, while their reputation insured its success from a financial point of view. The recital was given to help raise money for the new Whitford Memorial hall, which will be built in the village of Milton as a part of the college.

Preaching Tub.
A Chinese carpenter at Rangoon, who had been employed to construct a pulpit for a new Anglican church, sent in the bill for the work in the following form: "To one preaching tub, 50 rupees."

PIGSKIN'S CLOSING HOUR IS AT HAND

Minnesota and Michigan Will Both Claim Championship of the West—Chicago Game.

As far as fixing the championship is concerned all of the football games of the season of 1904 have been played. The result is that there is no champion in the west, although the title undoubtedly lies between two teams, while in the east Yale is claiming first place in the face of the fact that Pennsylvania has an equally good record. No unbiased critic is disposed to give the top place to either Michigan or Minnesota. These teams undoubtedly surpass all others in this if not in all sections of the country, but the record of one is as good as another and the only thing that would settle the matter would be a meeting of Williams' and Yost's men, which is now altogether out of the question. Because Minnesota asked for a game and was refused the Gophers have the greater claim if the title were to be awarded in that way. Although Chicago defeated Northwestern by a disgracefully big score on Oct. 22, the later season development of the purple showed that it was at least in Chicago's class and, barring a defeat of Chicago by Wisconsin tomorrow, which would be the biggest football surprise of several years, the maroon and purple are entitled jointly to second place, with Illinois third and Wisconsin fourth.

The North-Western-Minnesota game of last Saturday demonstrated one thing very conclusively, and that was no matter how perfectly a light team is drilled and adapts itself to all of the points which make a good football team a much heavier team that is almost as proficient will defeat it. In almost every point of the game Northwestern excelled Minnesota. But the handicap of between fifteen and twenty pounds to the man proved to be the deciding factor. The Wisconsin-Chicago game tomorrow can only affect the ranking of the teams, although it is likely that it will draw a big holiday crowd and will develop into an interesting contest. Staggs has lost a couple of his best men through injuries, but that the Badgers' defeat at the hands of Michigan and Minnesota has probably taken all of the life out of the squad that was not killed by internal dissensions, is the opinion of the Chicago contingent.

SPARKS FROM THE WIRES

The German steamer Gertrud Woermann, from Hamburg for Swakopmund, German Southwest Africa, with troops, was stranded north of that port.

The British embassy at Constantinople has joined the American legation in insisting on the cessation of interference with the sales of Bibles in certain localities.

Natural Fly Catcher.

One of the most successful flycatchers in the world, it is not generally known, is the familiar milkweed blossom. The bloom attracts the flies in great numbers from a distance, only to imprison them. The peculiar glue nature of the flower quickly entangles the fly and from its embrace there is no escape.

Japanese Dressing for Wounds.
At a cost of 25 cents Japanese doctors can dress the wounds of 500 men. They use a finely powdered charcoal obtained by the slow combustion of straw in closed furnaces. Sachets filled with it are applied to the wounds, and its antiseptic and absorbent qualities generally effect a rapid cure.

Jamesville Daily Gazette, Wednesday, November 23, 1861.—No Paper Tomorrow.—Desiring to respect the recommendation of the President and the Governor for the observance of Thanksgiving and to give those in our employ an opportunity to engage in the due observance of the day, we shall publish no paper tomorrow nor transact any other business in this office.

Wood for the Soldiers' Families.—We understand that A. A. Jackson completed arrangements in Jefferson yesterday for the forwarding of 200 cords of wood to this city for the soldiers' families. It will cost here something over $6.00 per cord.

Going Forward.—A company of the 4th regiment numbering 85 men, arrived here last evening in their way to the front but there being no cars to carry them forward they remained here until this afternoon. Their destination is Nashville.

Arrival of Some of the 13th.—We are glad to see the men of the 13th regiment who belong hereabouts and whose time has expired reached the city today. They will be welcome guests around the Thanksgiving board.

Picked up in the street of this city a pocket book which the owner can have by coming to this office and proving the property.

The soldiers in and around St. Louis are to be given a Thanksgiving dinner at the Lindell house.

Coming Attractions.

The New Village Postmaster.

"The Village Postmaster" is another of the rural entertainments which have come to enjoy such prestige of late years and whose development and popularization is a blessing to the stage. One sight of the "Village Postmaster" with its innocent fun, its simple but charming story, and its wholesome lessons, is worth ten years of experience with plays of the baser sort.

The complete production will be seen at the Myers Grand Thursday in the New England play that created such a sensation in New York and which had a run at the 14th St. Theatre there of 237 nights. It is with pleasure that the attention of theatre patrons can be directed to such a play. Don't forget also that this most successful play has just finished a long run of 125 nights in Chicago, where it played to big business all the time.

An excellent company will be seen here including many of the original pouring rains to our meals is, of course, not always delightful. The meals for the different employees are served at their several quarters. There is a Quisine, presided over by a French cook, located in the center of the hospital grounds. There all the meals are prepared and from there carried by colored servants to the different quarters in porcelain vessels provided for the purpose.

Those who are fortunate to be able to eat when the meal is first served get a good hot meal but the belated ones must content themselves with a cold meal, for there is no way provided to keep the food hot. The meals here are strange to a northern. The first one served at 6:30 a. m. is called "coffee." At this there should only be served coffee and rolls, but we have a cereal of some kind, bacon and eggs or fish balls, or pancakes or omelet, in fact just what, in the north, is served for breakfast. At 11 a. m. "breakfast" is served. The bill of fare is about what it would be in the north for luncheon. At 5 p. m. comes "dinner," which is a three-course meal. They have no such meal as supper here. The government is a good provider and as far as the tropical conditions will permit, we have good food. Milk is twenty cents a quart and poor at that. Fresh eggs are five cents a piece, shipped eggs forty or fifty cents a dozen. Butter is shipped in tin cans, sealed like canned fruits. It has a most peculiar flavor. One has to get starved into eating it. The Eagle Brand of condensed milk and cream is used entirely on the tables. Fresh milk is provided only for the diet kitchen.

The Canal Commission have contracted with a man at Panama to supply all the fresh meat used in the various Quisines in the Canal Zone.

INTERESTING, IF TRUE

You Can Try It For Yourself And Prove It.

One grain of the active principle in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of meat, eggs or other wholesome food and this claim has been proven by actual experiment which anyone can perform for himself in the following manner: Cut hard-boiled eggs into very small pieces, as it would be if masticated, place the egg and two or three of the tablets in a bottle or jar containing warm water heated to 98 degrees (the temperature of the body) and keep it at this temperature for three and one-half hours, at the end of which time the egg will be completely digested as it would have been in the healthy stomach of a hungry boy.

The point of this experiment is that what Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will do to the egg in the bottle it will do to the egg or meat in the stomach and nothing else will rest and invigorate the stomach so safely and effectively. Even a little child can take Stuart's tablets with safety and benefit if its digestion is weak, and the thousands of cures accomplished by their regular daily use are easily explained when it is understood that they are composed of vegetable essences, aseptic pepsin, diastase and Golden Seal, which mingles with the food and digests it thoroughly, giving the overworked stomach a chance to recuperate.

Dieting never cures dyspepsia, neither do pills and cathartic medicines which simply irritate and inflame the intestines.

When enough food is eaten and promptly digested there will be no constipation, nor in fact will there be disease of any kind because good digestion means good health in every organ.

The merit and success of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets are world wide and they are sold at the moderate price of 50 cents for full sized package in every drug store in the United States and Canada, as well as in Europe.

Thus far the meat has been very good.

The Canal Commission has its own manufacturing plants at Ancon and at Colon, so we have plenty of food to use, provided the plants do not break down.

The chapel formerly used for Catholic services has been refitted for Protestant services. As the only Protestant minister in the Canal Zone is Archbishop Kendrick of Colon he has been engaged to hold Episcopal services once a month in the chapel at Ancon. On the intervening Sunday mornings the services are conducted by some of the officials, the ritualistic service by one, and a sermon, written by some eminent divine, read by another.

Archbishop Kendrick came to Colon from England fourteen years ago. His struggles to build up a church at Colon are worthy of far greater results than he has realized. He says after all these years of missionary labor he does not have more than four or five white people in his congregation and those few will not assist him much in the work of the church. The prevailing religion being Catholic, it makes it difficult for any other religious denomination to get a foothold. The Archbishop is in hopes to get some help now from the "Canal people," as all connected with that enterprise are called. Surely he is deserving of all the encouragement and help we can give him. To labor for fourteen years with almost no results is disheartening enough to discourage the most enthusiastic worker for Christ. The Panama railroad built a very pretty church at Colon, which is used for the Episcopal services so all that is needed now is members and enthusiastic workers to push the work on to success.

THE INDIANS' THANKSGIVING

THE interest in Thanksgiving day and its observance is just as intense these days among the reservation Indians as in college towns where great football games are scheduled to occur, says the New York Times. Especially is this true in the southwest, where the Indians have had an opportunity to become thoroughly civilized of late years. The white people find no more enjoyment in this day of universal good cheer than do these same dusky Redskins.

It is a day of feasting, playing and gambling, with a big dance at night. Such sport only comes once a year to them nowadays, when they have had to forsake the scalping knife for the plow. Their wild nature rebelled at the idea of work, and it has been with much difficulty that the government agents have made farmers out of the young braves. A day of rest and amusement is considered good for their better nature, and the government authorities are willing that Thanksgiving day shall become a festival time for the reservation wards of the nation.

The Klowas and Comanches, who have but recently been placed on allotments, will have forsaken many of their wild plans of amusement this Thanksgiving, owing to the fact that they have been cut off the free list of beef issues. They have arranged to draw grass money on Thanksgiving, and a goodly portion of this will be spent in purchasing food for a grand feast. At night they will take part in a green corn dance, at which prayers will be offered to the Great Spirit for the good crops which they have had the past season. The spirit of thankfulness pervades the Indian celebrations.

The Osages hold a big feast at Pawhuska, their capital city. All members of the tribe are invited to take part in the festivities. At the beginning and end of each meal—and there are many—the aged missionary who lives among them is invited to deliver a short prayer, thanking the Great Spirit for the good things which the agent has sent to them. The food is cooked by the squaws, and, while it could be prepared in a much cleaner and more tasteful manner, the cooking is an improvement over that of a few years ago.

The Apaches and Cheyennes are in the habit of holding a pony smoke. Often the Osages indulge in this expensive festival. A pony smoke is a friendly meeting of two tribes and is especially appropriate for the occasion. The tribe giving the smoke is supposed to bear all of the expenses. They provide the best game and vegetables in the market for their guests, and at the end of the first day's meeting they present a good pony to the head of each family visiting them. As a tribe consists of from 300 to 500 families, the expenses soon mount high. The Osages, being the richest reservation Indians there are today, can better afford to hold pony smokes, and, combined with their feast day, they generally invite several hundred guests from the Poncas, Tonkawas and surrounding tribes. Those accepting the ponies are supposed to return the gift with equally expensive ones later on, but few of them can do so.

The Poncas hold every Thanksgiving as a beef issue day. If the agent does not come forward and present them with a herd of cattle for this occasion, they mortgage their property and buy cattle of some neighboring ranchman. A beef issue is the most typical of the redskin and also the most picturesque of Indian Thanksgiving celebrations. For years the government has forbidden the issue of beef after the manner of an old time issue, but on special occasions they are allowed the amusement of killing their own meat. It is said by the government officers who succeeded in having the practice stopped that beef issue tends to make the Indian wilder and more difficult to civilize.

A hundred cattle are turned loose in a large pasture. The young men of the tribe are mounted on mustangs and have shining field guns. With the good wishes of the squaws and medicine men ringing in their ears they ride out to kill the cattle. The beasts have no chance for life whatever. The chase is accompanied by an undue amount of wild yelling, while excitement grows intense in the camp. The smell of fresh blood makes the squaws wild, as it were. After all of the cattle have been shot down then the killers give a signal which means that all of the tribe are at liberty to rush forth and secure their portion. A half beef is awarded to each squaw. The beef is cleaned and cooked on a fire on the open plain, while the medicine men dance their approval and the warriors sing in their glances. The feast follows, with more dancing, and the whole day is thus spent, ending late at night with a final gorge.

CURED WHEN OTHERS FAILED

1056 Winnemac Avenue, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 25, 1902.

Wine of Cardui can always be relied upon to cure when everything else fails. It is a certain cure for female diseases in their worst forms. I suffered for years with ulceration. Intense pains in the womb and ovaries and dreadful headaches unfitted me for my work. Finally I grew so ill that I had to keep to my bed. The pains were so intense at times as to cause spasms and a disagreeable discharge drained my life forces. In my extremity after all else had failed, I tried Wine of Cardui. After using it for two weeks I began to improve so rapidly that I felt encouraged to keep up the treatment, which I did for eight weeks, but at the end of that time I was entirely cured. What a relief was mine and how new and beautiful life looked to me when my health was restored. Only those who have passed through such a stage of sickness as I have will understand how much I value Wine of Cardui. It is indeed a boon to sick women.

Frances Mitchell Secretary, North Chicago Frauen Verein.

Every weak woman needs Wine of Cardui. Wine of Cardui cures disordered and painful menstruation, periodical headaches, falling of the womb and leucorrhoea. It cures extreme cases of these troubles. It strengthens girls approaching womanhood, helps bring children to barren homes, makes pregnancy and childbirth easier, prevents miscarriages and is the best medicine ever made for use during the change of life. Why permit the good women in your home to suffer another day? Every druggist has $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui.

PAINLESS DENTISTRY.

I have long had a reputation for PAINLESS WORK, because I have given it my close thought and study for many years. But only within recent months have I been able to treat the severe cases without hurting.

Now, however, I can fill or crown the most sensitive tooth without a particle of pain.

I can cut into a "live nerve" and remove it immediately without the patient's knowledge.

If you place yourself in my care you may be sure of receiving the most careful and considerate attention, coupled with all the skill I have been able to acquire in my 15 years of practice. As to prices, some dentists will charge you DOUBLE my prices.

On the other hand, I do not stoop to meet the quack dentists whose advertised prices in most cases do not cover the cost of honest material. I endeavor to occupy a medium reasonable ground where I can live and you get full value for your money.

CHAPTER XIX.

Two Strange Interviews.

It was delightful to be again in the old-fashioned country house overlooking the ocean. Jessie confessed to Edith Hancock that her anxiety to return to Paris was assumed.

"I would be perfectly happy in this dear old place all summer—were it not for one discord," she said to Edith as they galloped along the beach the first evening after their arrival in Hingham. "Yonder is a suggestion of what is driving me to a foreign land."

Jessie pointed with her riding whip at the red-tiled roof of the Morris mansion, seen several miles away through a cleft in the hills.

"Do you mean that you are flying from Arthur Morris?" Edith's dark eyes opened wide.

"I do. I prefer the society of strangers abroad rather than to tolerate his occasional presence here," answered Jessie, biting her lip in vexation.

They entered in silence until they came to the old bridge where Jessie first met John Burt. There she reined in her bay.

"We'll let the horses rest here a moment," she said. "I always liked this spot. Isn't the view charming across the level of the marsh to the rocks and the dark fringe of places beyond?"

"It's much better at the top of the hill," insisted Edith, and wondered what Jessie could find to admire in the prosaic surroundings. "Come on, Jessie," and she touched her rein with the whip.

Jessie remained behind. Back through the swiftly-flying years her fancy wandered to the summer day when, under the tuition of a sturdy farmer lad, she fished for crabs over the side of the bridge.

Did John Burt yet live? Did she yet hold the place in his heart she occupied on that night, when, under the old maples, she rested against his breast and bade him a sad farewell? Would he return? When? The little brook, flowing towards the ocean on the outgoing tide, seemed the sole connecting link between the past and the future.

The clatter of hoofs aroused Jessie from her reverie. She looked up to see Edith coming towards her.

"What attraction has that muddy old creek?" demanded Edith. "Come on, Jessie; uncle Tom has sounded the horn for dinner."

On the morrow Edith and Mrs. Bishop went to Boston on a shopping expedition, but they could not persuade Jessie to accompany them. In the afternoon she ordered her horse saddled, and, declining an escort, soon disappeared in a turn of the road. Half an hour later she stopped in front of Peter Burt's farmhouse.

She had not dismounted when the great oaken door swung back and Peter Burt came towards her. There was a kindly gleam in his eye, as, with a courtly air, he bowed and greeted her.

"It is thoughtful of you to remember me, my child," he said, as he gave her his hand and helped her to dismount. "Jasper, take care of Miss Carden's horse! We will sit in the shade of the trees; it is cool and pleasant here. How is your father, my child?"

"He is very well," answered Jessie. "Since you saw him he has had financial trouble, but his affairs are in better shape now. He lives in New York."

The old man made no reply and an interval of silence followed. She felt that his eyes were upon her, not kindly, but searching, friendly and magnetic. Almost unconsciously she addressed him:

"Have you received any word or heard anything from John, Mr. Burt?"

He paused for a moment as if to weigh his words.

INHERITED SCROFULA

When a child I had a very severe attack of Diptheria, which came near proving fatal. Upon recovery the glands of the neck were very much enlarged, and after the free use of iodine, the right one was reduced to its normal size, but the left one continued to grow—very slowly at first, until it was about the size of a goose egg, which began to press on the windpipe, causing difficult breathing, and I became very painful. An incision was made and a large quantity of pus discharged. The gland was removed, or as much as could with safety be taken out. For ten years I wore a little piece of cloth about an inch long in my neck to keep the place open. During this time I had to have it cut open by the doctor every time I took cold or the opening clogged. In the Spring or early Summer of 1884 I was persuaded by my wife to use S. S. S., which I did, strictly in accordance with directions. I took twenty-six large bottles, and was entirely cured, for I have not suffered since that time.

The Swift Specific Company, Atlanta, Ga.

"I have heard from him," he said deliberately. "He is alive and well." "Alive and well!" she exclaimed, her eyes glistening with excitement. "He is alive and well," repeated Peter Burt. This strange interview took place more than two years before James Blake returned from California, and as has been narrated in the preceding chapters, it was the first verbal information concerning John Burt.

"Listen to me, my child," said Peter Burt, impressively, "and have faith in every word I say to you. John is in a far-off land, and there he shall remain until the time ordained for his return. Seek not to call him away from fields not yet harvested. I am four-score and more years old, yet shall I live long after his return, and he and his shall be the joy of my closing days. Youth is impatient, but it is powerless to check God's plans. Do you believe what I have told you, my child?"

"I do," answered Jessie Carden, and her voice and the confident look in her eyes added emphasis to her declaration.

Peter Burt abruptly changed the subject, nor did he return to it. For nearly three hours they talked on various topics, and never once did Peter Burt lead the conversation in a direction not entertaining to his fair young visitor. Not until the great rock to the west of the house threw its long shadow over them did Jessie look at her watch. With an exclamation of surprise she arose to go.

"You have made this afternoon a very happy one for me, my child," he said, as he lifted her to the saddle. He bowed his gray head and raised his powerful arms.

"May God bless and keep you, my daughter."

Jessie rode home in the fading sunlight, a great joy in her heart. "He is alive and well!" she repeated, thus and time again.

A week later Jessie sailed for France. It was nearly two years before she completed her studies, and again entered Boston harbor.

CHAPTER XX.

General Carden is Puzzled.

"Here are the papers, papa dear. And here are cigars and matches. I found your glasses on the writing desk. You are careless as ever," papa dear. Isn't it nice to have some one who knows just what you wish and where to find it?"

"It is, Jessie, my pet!" And General Carden placed his arm around his daughter's waist, drew her fair face down to his and kissed her fondly.

"I shall not let you read all the evening, papa, because I have so many things to tell you," said Jessie, smoothing back the scant gray locks. They were in the cozy drawing room of Mr. Bishop's New York residence.

"It is remarkable how easily a new concern can establish itself in Wall Street," said General Carden, laying aside his paper and slowly wiping his glasses. Jessie raised her eyes with dutiful interest. "It was not so in the old conservative days. It then took years to establish standing and credit. Now an unknown man can come out from the West and have the Street by the ears in thirty days. For example, take this man Blake, who has established the firm of Blake & Company. He suddenly appeared here from San Francisco and conducted a campaign which swept two old established houses off their feet. His profits were estimated at millions. Since then we have heard of nothing but the doings of James Blake. Here is an article," continued General Carden, picking up a paper, "which gives an account of a conference between this upstart and the Secretary of the Treasury of the United States. They say Blake is only twenty-seven years old. Jessie, my dear, it is a great thing to be born fortunate. You were not wise, darling, in your selection of a father." General Carden smiled sadly.

"I've the best and dearest father in the world!" exclaimed Jessie, placing her hand in his. "But I'm not going to let him read the papers any more this evening. Let's forget all about the old stocks and talk of those we know. Papa, dear, I wish to ask you a question."

"What is it, my pet? They say that children must not ask questions."

"Has anything been heard of John Burt? I—I thought perhaps Mr. Morris would know as soon as any one."

General Carden's lips tightened. He pulled nervously at his beard, and the military moustache bristled aggressively.

"Answer me, papa! I have a right to know this."

There was a flash in the tender eyes and a warning curve in the pretty lips. The crimson left her cheek and she looked frankly into her father's face. There is in innocence the bravery of truth and the calm modesty of virtue. General Carden was disarmed.

"Nothing has been heard from Mr. Burt so far as I can learn, Jessie," he said. "Possibly his grandfather may have news. I am reasonably sure Mr. Morris has none. Let us talk of something else, Jessie."

The door opened and Mrs. Bishop entered.

"Here is your evening mail, Marshall," she said, handing her brother a number of letters. "And here is a letter for you, Jessie."

Jessie opened and read a note from Arthur Morris. It congratulated her on a safe return from abroad, and closed by asking permission to call on the first evening which would suit her convenience. The letter lay idly in her hand, and her thoughts were far away when the general uttered an exclamation.

"A most astounding coincidence! Really, this is quite remarkable!"

"What has happened, papa?"

"You remember that I was speaking of the remarkable success of a western man, named Blake? Well, here is a letter from him! This is what he writes:"

"New York, June 2.

"Dear Sir—I am informed that you hold an equity in ten thousand shares of the L. & O. railroad company. I have customers who are interested in this property, and represent them in negotiations now pending. It is possible your interests may be conserved by conferring with me on this matter. I shall be pleased to meet you at your earliest convenience. To a gentleman of your experience an injunction to secrecy is unnecessary.

"Awaiting the pleasure of a conference in my office, and trusting that it may result to our mutual advantage, I remain,

"Very truly yours,

"JAMES BLAKE,

"President, James Blake & Co."

"That is odd, isn't it?" said Jessie. The general's face glowed with pleasure. "Do you own ten thousand shares of stock in a railroad, papa?"

"I own an equity in that amount of stock in an alleged railroad," he said, with a grim smile. "An equity is something you think you own, and hope to realize on, but do not expect to. Do not bother your head about it, pet. From whom is your letter?"

"From Mr. Morris. He wishes to call some evening this week."

"Ah, um—m." The general cleared his throat and appeared to be concerned only indirectly. "Suppose you invite Mr. Morris to take dinner with us Wednesday evening."

"I have no engagement for Wednesday evening," said Jessie, carelessly. "I will write and ask him to call at that time."

"I have not told you of the change in Mr. Morris's affairs," said General Carden, with some eagerness, "nor have I mentioned my good fortune in consequence of that change."

"And your good fortune is what, papa?" asked Jessie, without lifting her eyes.

"A much more important position has been awarded to me, with a corresponding increase in emolument," replied General Carden with more of dignity than of pride. Jessie threw her arms around her father's neck and spoke tender words of congratulation.

"We will talk no more of money and other gloomy things," she declared with a laugh which brought the roses to her cheeks. "I am going to play for you."

"Listen to this, papa!" She ran her fingers over the keys of the piano. The liquid notes swelled into the intoxicating melody of a gypsy dance and quivered with the trilling of birds among the trees. For half an hour Jessie played. Then she began a spirited recital of her experiences abroad.

She mimicked the staid old German professors, and the general laughed until the tears coursed down his cheeks.

General Carden made an early appointment with James Blake and was promptly admitted to the private office of the famous operator.

"If you have no objection, general," said James Blake, after the usual commonplace remarks which preface business transactions, "explain the exact status of this block of L. & O. stock."

"There is no secret about it," replied the former banker. "A number of years ago I became convinced that the L. & O. railroad had a brilliant future. I purchased fifteen thousand shares on speculation. Then the panic swept the country. Not dreaming that my bank would be involved, I decided to protect my L. & O. stock and accordingly bought it in at fifty, paying the sum of $500,000 in cash. Then the crash came and my bank went under with the others. Randolph Morris was my principal creditor. Mr. Arthur Morris consented, as a personal favor, to lend me two hundred thousand dollars on the stock. Interest and other charges have since accumulated until Mr. Morris has now a claim of $248,000 against the stock.

"Thank you, Jim," returned John Burt, his expressive face aglow with pleasure. "When that happy day comes you must bring Mrs. Blake and the children with you."

"At what price does Mr. Morris propose to sacrifice the stock?" asked Blake.

"At twenty-six."

James Blake made a rapid calculation on a writing pad.

"I have a proposition to make you, General Carden," he said. "I will advance you the money to exercise your option, on the condition that you do so when it drops to 26. You will deposit the stock with me and place it in a pool to be handled at my discretion. As an evidence of my good faith I now offer you 35 for your stock—eight points more than the market price. After meeting the Morris claim this will leave you a balance of $100,000."

General Carden looked into the handsome face of the young man who calmly made this proposition. For some moments he was silent, but the old hopes awoke and the courage of youth came back.

"I will follow your advice, Mr. Blake," he said, firmly. "My one ambition is to insure the happiness of my daughter. You must be sure of your ground, and I am content to rely on your judgment. I therefore accept your original offer, Mr. Blake, and will sign an agreement to that effect."

Blake called a legal subordinate and, in General Carden's presence, dictated the terms of the contract, duplicate copies of which were signed and witnessed.

"I should be pleased and honored," said General Carden, as he arose to go, "to have you accept the humble hospitality of my temporary home. If you have no other engagement, dine with us on Thursday evening."

"I have none, and shall do myself that pleasure. Until then, adieu, General Carden."

James Blake shook hands with the general, and turned and entered John Burt's private office.

"It's all right, John!" he exclaimed, with the enthusiasm of a boy. "You couldn't have managed it better yourself. I have his option and a contract which gives us absolute control. He's a dignified and at times a crusty old gentleman, but he stood in proper awe of the famous firm of James Blake & Company."

"Did General Carden say anything about his daughter?" asked John, with anxious eagerness. "Has she returned from Europe?"

"I think the fair Jessie is in New York at this very moment," said Blake, smiling as he noted the flash of joy in the other's eyes. "I'm not supposed to know that he has a daughter, and you cautioned me to be very careful to say nothing which might arouse his suspicions. But he invited me to dine with him at the Bishop residence on Thursday evening."

"Of course, you accepted, Jim?"

"I should say I did," laughed Blake. "How would you like to take my place, John?"

"Very much, Jim." There was a wistful, faraway expression in the deep gray eyes. "I must wait a time yet—not long, I hope."

"Never mind, old man," said Blake, heartily. "I hope you may live to dine with her a million times, and that in future years an old chap named Blake may occasionally be permitted to have a seat at the table, and that he may be surrounded by a new and increasing generation of sturdy young John Burts and fair and radiant little Jessie Burts."

"Thank you, Jim," returned John Burt, his expressive face aglow with pleasure. "When that happy day comes you must bring Mrs. Blake and the children with you."

LIFE ALL TOO BRIEF

CAREER OF WORLD'S GREATEST MASTER OF MUSIC.

Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart the Idol of His Generation—Marvelous Work Completed at the Early Age of 35—Genius Evincing in His Childhood.

(Special Correspondence.)

The composer, Wolfgang Amadeus Mozart, was born in Salzburg, Jan. 27, 1756. His father, Leopold Mozart, was capellmeister in the service of one of the archbishops. Leopold Mozart and his wife were spoken of as the handsomest couple in Salzburg. And we know from the portraits the strange and fascinating beauty in the face of Wolfgang Mozart. Therefore is his memory revered to-day for his sweetness and love of humanity; his testimony of vast genius.

From his earliest childhood Mozart loved music passionately. As a child at play he was fond of musical games, and always happy if some one would play for the children in all their games. His sense of hearing was extraordinary. He was able to detect the difference of an eighth note in the tuning of a violin; and small sounds were to him annoying although many times these same noises were unnoticed by other people. Loud noises were a source of absolute torture to him.

At the age of 5 years, Mozart's skill upon the harpsichord was very unusual. But the little lad's shyness of playing before musicians was strong.

When Mozart was but 6 years old his genius and skill were so great and his fame so widespread that the elder Mozart planned to take the children to Vienna to the court of the Emperor Francis and the beautiful Empress Maria Theresa, both of whom were fond of music.

It is related that even at this early age the little Mozart was of so sweet and winning a nature that he made friends with the customs officers, played a minuet upon his little violin, and presto, "Pass, free of duty," said the officer.

The imperial family were sincere lovers of music and with a court so favorably disposed it was not surprising that Leopold Mozart should receive a command shortly after his arrival to present the two wonderful children at court at Schonbrunn, an imperial palace near Vienna, and all this without the least solicitation on the part of the father.

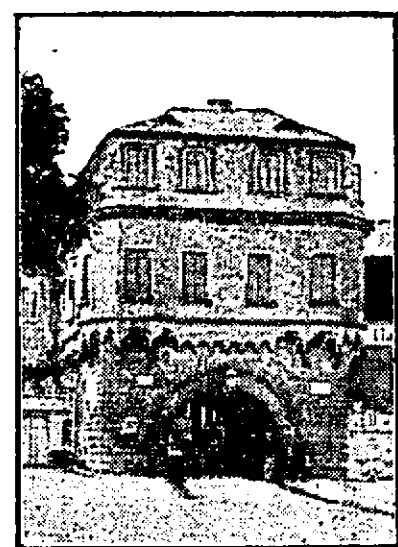

Mozart at this time was a wonderfully handsome child, very attractive, his manners quite frank and natural and instinctively good. He was a bit shy when he was presented to the Empress. Then he looked up, and into her eyes. Her beautiful face was smiling, and in a moment the lad had kissed her, although he had been instructed to kneel to his Empress. And the Empress was much pleased. Mozart's appearance at the court of Austria was a decided success. The Emperor ordered 160 ducats to be paid to Mozart; the Empress sent the family costly dresses. The gift to Mozart to Wolferl, as he was intimately called, was the clothing he wore in the painting which is preserved of him in Salzburg, and is of fine cloth, blue-colored, the vest of silk of the same color. The coat had a broad border of gold.

The Mozart family left the Austrian court and traveled through southern Germany to Paris. There they found the fame of the child had preceded them, and every one eager to welcome the boy who possessed such remarkable skill and genius. They were commanded to appear at the French court at Versailles. From Paris to London, through Holland and Switzerland, and, after two years, they returned home to Salzburg.

Mozart was then 8 years old. And his father, that year, published for him four sonatas for the piano and violin, thus introducing the boy as a composer at this remarkable age.

The next six years were full of study for the boy. Some few compositions were published. His father determined now to take him to Italy.

Birthplace of Mozart.

Italy proved one long series of delightful experiences for the boy. Fame and glory abounded. In Milan he received an order for an opera, and accomplished his work very satisfactorily at 15 years of age!

In Rome the Pope, Clement XIV., conferred upon him the order of the Golden Spur, a very high compliment, and thus the boy of 14 wore the title of Chevalier Mozart!

From one of his father's letters we learn that while in Rome Mozart heard the famous "Miserere" by Allegri sung in the Sistine chapel, and the rendering made so deep an impression upon the lad that on reaching home he wrote down from memory every bar of the music—a great work, which musicians were forbidden to copy any part of.

At 16 the city of Munich gave the young composer an order to write an opera, and the work was a great success. The archbishop of Salzburg employed him now as concert master. The salary was small and the archbishop not only exacting but jealous of the young man's success. So those years under Jerome, the archbishop, were hard ones.

When Mozart was 20 he and his mother went to Paris (he having left the service of the archbishop), where Frau Mozart was taken ill suddenly and died. Paris now seemed so horrible to the young man that he left the city and returned to Munich, where he wrote his opera "Idomeneus," which met with great success.

At 26 Mozart married Constanze Weber, and, like the people in the story books, they lived happily ever after until the too soon ending of the life of this wonderful man.

The writing of the "Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni" followed his marriage, and in these operas we find the strongest music Mozart had written up to this time. The operas at once made a marvelous success, and gained at a jump a place in the world that they have always kept. The Emperor at this time appointed Mozart court composer. Then came the "Magic Flute," wherein Mozart is at his best.

His wife, joining him in Vienna, was much shocked at Mozart's weakness. He was working hard upon his "Requiem"; he had withdrawn from all pleasures and wrote, wrote, wrote until it seemed his young life was being woven into the music. He grew steadily weaker, and on the 5th of December, 1791, the young man of but 35 laid down his pen, giving careful directions for the finishing of his masterly work, the "Requiem."

Mozart left over 600 compositions, including operas, 15 masses, 49 symphonies. His symphony in G minor is one of which Schubert said: "You can hear the angels singing in it." He wrote many quartets, and they are among his greatest works, songs, sonatas and chamber music; and finally the "Requiem," the greatest in the world's history of music.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Magee and Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Munger left yesterday morning for St. Louis where they will take in the fair.

If you send your washing out keep your eye on the method your washerwoman employs. Don't permit the use of rank, cheap soap that makes the clothes yellow and requires boiling to get out the dirt. An out of date washer will give the clothes more wear in the wash tub than you give them in actual use. Five bars of Peosta cost 25c at any grocery store and they will do five large washings.
